Pagan Scenes and Dances

for orchestra

Each movement of Pagan Scenes and Dances is named after the points of The Pagan Wheel of the Year. The wheel traces the change of seasons with ceremonial occasions to celebrate or reflect on the current environmental state. The most prominent themes are from darkness to light, along with tracing the fertility of spring to the summer and autumn harvests before the death of winter. The wheel is cyclical, with every year end, Samhain, going into Yule to start the pattern again.With this in mind, the piece could technically be performed starting at any movement, although most effective would be beginning with Yule, Beltane or Lughnasadh. Many of the pagan festivals correlate to modern ones such as Yule and Christmas, Imbolc and Candlemas, Ostara and Easter, and Samhain and Halloween.

I. Yule — Scene
Yule starts the pagan wheel at the very darkest moment of the year, the winter solstice. Despite the stark and bleak landscape Yule is reminiscent of lighter times, a likely tactic to help Pagans of centuries gone by get through the harshest time of year. The movement begins by setting the barren scene with delicate higher textures in the upper strings and wind, before the darker depths of the lower instruments enter. A light snowflake-like dance takes over for the second half of the movement as the darkness begins to dissipate.

II. Imbolc — Dance
One of the more ceremonial movements, Imbolc symbolises the light emerging from the darkness. Like a candle in the darkness, the glockenspiel guides the deep tones of the lower instruments upwards until the emergence of the Cor Anglais solo. Whilst the slow 3/4 metre and sombre mood resembles a sarabande, the ‘dance’ element remains abstract until the solo.

III. Ostara — Dance
Ostara marks the spring equinox, symbolising rebirth and the boom of life one sees in nature. This is represented through the blooming fanfares in the brass and large tutti chords, with the offbeat rhythms bringing contrast to the primal dance.

IV. Beltane — Scene
After the bloom of spring comes the beginning of summer, Beltane (or May Day). Beltane celebrates the fertility of the lighter months, with bonfires traditionally lit as a purification ritual. Harking back to the more ceremonial mood of Imbolc, this movement contains unruly solos in the clarinet and piccolo, untameable like a flame or nature itself.

V. Litha — Dance
Litha celebrates the summer equinox, also called Midsummer, the lightest part of the year. The sun is worshipped with dancing around and jumping over bonfires. The 12/8 metre forms a clear and joyful dance, with bouncing dotted rhythms littering the canonic string theme. Some Pagan cultures also view this as the win of light over dark; the second half of the movement represents more of a battle-ground, with loud and turbulent gestures littering the soundscape before the opening light theme ultimately wins.

VI. Lughnasadh (LOO-na-sa) — Scene
Lughnasadh is a reflective occasion that thanks the Gaelic God, Lugh, for the year’s harvest. The movement itself is a prayer, contrasting the rest of the work not only in theme but also texture as the instrumentation is heavily stripped back from the previous movement. The origins of Lughnasadh has funeral themes, marking the beginning of the death of the earth for this cycle. The prayer is also cautious, as the people ask for a forgiving winter to come.

VII. Mabon — Dance
The autumn equinox marks not only the final harvest but mostly importantly the beginning of the earth’s decay. It is a dark death, with unpredictable rhythms and timbres littering Mabon as wild themes in the oboe and other solos represent the oncoming chaos and decent.

VIII. Samhain (SAH-win) — Scene
The cycle comes to and end with Samhain, what we commonly refer to as Halloween. The veil is at its thinnest between the living and the dead. Grand gestures open the movement before haunting themes take over in the brass and solo bassoon. The piece ends with a final dramatic run into a wild and terrifying darkness.
